

REMEMBERING
Sharon Anne Pahl

January 14, 1944 - January 3, 2024

Sharon Pahl née Isted of Abbotsford, BC passed away on January 3, 2024, after a nearly three-year battle with cancer. She breathed her last breath at Holmberg House in Abbotsford, with her husband of fifty-five years sitting at her side.

She was born in Vancouver but had called Abbotsford home since she moved to the Valley to teach in the late 1960s. She worked at various high schools in SD34, but her favourite job was as a teacher and librarian in the prison system.

She loved being a mom best. She was good at it.

Sharon was a joy to know, always willing to listen, lend a hand, fight alongside you, or hold you close, whatever the need. She loved her husband, children, and family passionately, and she always had your back.

Injustice hurt her heart. She never could quite understand cruelty.

She loved animals of all kinds, dogs and horses most especially. She walked alongside a few canine loves during her time here.

Sharon was a keen gardener and loved taking people through her flowers in the spring and summer as they bloomed. She had a green thumb with indoor plants too. Sharon was knowledgeable about gardening, helped along by her love of reading, though murder mysteries were where much of her affection lay.

The same can be said of her viewing tastes: she enjoyed British murder mystery shows and police who-done-its.

She didn't think she was much of a cook, but she was wrong about that, and we told her so regularly. Her stroganoff was the best in the world. Ditto her trifle.

A Memorial Service for Sharon will be held on Friday, January 19, 2024, at 1:00 p.m., at St. Matthew's Anglican Church, 2010 Guilford Drive, Abbotsford, BC. In lieu of flowers, please donate to a cause near to your heart. Sharon loved helping other people.
